

Q1 2025 Fitness Center Report

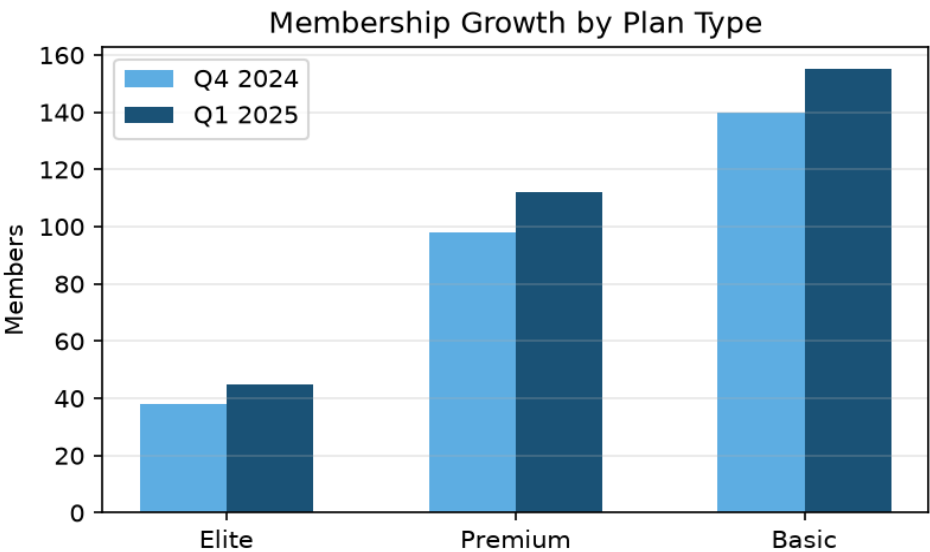

Prepared by: Management Team | Date: April 5, 2025 | Classification: Internal

1. Executive Summary

Q1 2025 was a strong quarter for the fitness center. Total active memberships grew 15% year-over-year to 312 members. Revenue reached $128,000, up from $108,000 in Q4 2024. Group class attendance hit an all-time high with 2,840 total class visits across Q1. Member retention rate was 91%, exceeding our target of 88%. However, two areas need attention: trainer punctuality complaints increased, and nutrition program adoption among new members remains low at 35%.

2. Membership Growth

Plan Type	Q1 2025	Q4 2024	Change
Elite ($159.99/mo)	45	38	+18.4%
Premium ($109.99/mo)	112	98	+14.3%
Basic ($49.99/mo)	155	140	+10.7%
Total Active	312	276	+13.0%

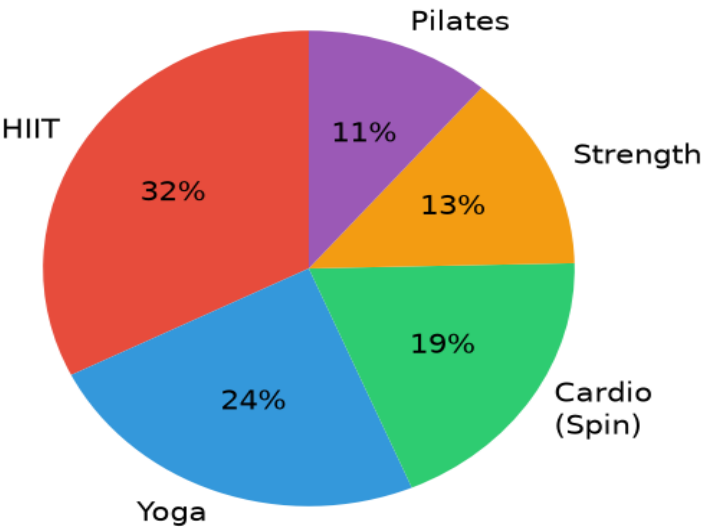

The January new-year surge brought 28 new sign-ups, though 4 cancelled before the end of Q1 (85.7% new member retention). Elite memberships saw the highest growth driven by the new personal training perks added in December 2024. One member (Nina Kowalski) went inactive due to relocation.

3. Class Attendance

Class Category	Total Q1 Visits	Avg per Session	Capacity Utilization
HIIT	920	18.4	91%
Yoga	680	17.0	70%
Cardio (Spin)	540	27.0	90%
Strength	380	12.7	85%
Pilates	320	13.3	67%
Total	2,840	-	81%

Q1 2025 Class Visits by Category

HIIT classes continue to be the most popular format, with the Saturday Weekend Warrior class at 100% capacity every week and a waitlist of 8-12 members. Derek Washington's classes consistently fill up. Pilates utilization is below target — Sofia Andersson received punctuality complaints that may be affecting enrollment. Recommendation: address punctuality issue and consider a promotional trial for pilates classes.

4. Trainer Performance

Trainer	Avg Rating	Sessions (Q1)	Specialty
Marcus Rivera	4.9	142	Strength
Yuki Tanaka	4.8	128	Yoga
Derek Washington	4.5	156	HIIT
Sofia Andersson	3.4	98	Pilates
Kwame Asante	3.1	110	Cardio

Rachel Kim	4.6	85	Nutrition
------------	-----	----	-----------

Marcus Rivera and Yuki Tanaka are top performers with excellent member feedback. Derek Washington has the highest session volume but received feedback about class overcrowding. Sofia Andersson's rating dropped from 4.1 to 3.4 due to punctuality issues — two complaints filed in February. Kwame Asante received feedback about repetitive cardio routines. Recommendation: performance improvement plans for Sofia and Kwame, with 90-day review.

5. Member Health Outcomes

Among members with at least 2 body metric recordings in Q1, results were very encouraging. Average weight loss was 2.1 kg across 8 tracked members. Average body fat reduction was 1.4 percentage points. Average resting heart rate improved by 3.2 bpm. Standout results include Sarah Johnson (lost 2.7 kg, body fat down from 24.0% to 22.1%) and Tom Baker (lost 3.0 kg despite dietary challenges — referred to nutrition counseling). Members with personal trainers showed 40% better results than those training independently.

6. Key Risks & Recommendations

1. Trainer Quality: Sofia Andersson and Kwame Asante need improvement plans. Low trainer ratings directly correlate with membership cancellations — 3 of 4 Q1 cancellations cited trainer quality. 2. Class Capacity: HIIT classes are consistently full. Add a second Saturday morning session to capture waitlist demand. Estimated revenue impact: +$2,400/month. 3. Nutrition Adoption: Only 35% of new members engage with nutrition tracking. Bundle a free nutrition consultation with all new premium and elite sign-ups. 4. Equipment Aging: Three treadmills and two spin bikes are past recommended replacement age. Budget $18,000 for Q2 equipment refresh. 5. Member at Risk: Tom Baker (BMI 30.1, Stage 1 hypertension) needs close monitoring. Nutrition counseling is mandatory per health assessment protocol.
